Design is the silent ambassador of your brand

— Paul Rand

Hey! I'm Ami

Creating Visual Magic in Vancouver as a Branding Specialist and Graphic Designer. I was born in Ontario with Portuguese heritage that runs deep, my journey is as colorful as my designs.

My personal branding, themed “Azulejos,” is a declaration to my love of Portuguese tiles and my connection to my heritage. A proud graduate with honors from British Columbia Institute of Technology and Emily Carr University.

My professional journey started back in 2007 in the world of fashion production, collaborating with local independent designers and even orchestrating the backstage chaos at New York Fashion Week (2009). But my entrepreneurial spirit led me to create a collective in Gastown, a brick-and-mortar store that showcased my own clothing brand alongside creations from approximately 40 local designers and makers. It was here that I discovered my passion for nurturing other businesses, becoming a catalyst for their growth.

My transition into branding was a bold move, and a difficult one to make, but it was a decision rooted in my desire to help small businesses thrive.

Now a full-time freelance designer for many years, I received a nomination (2022) for Young Professional of the Year at the Tri-Cities Chambers. My portfolio showcases partnerships with more than 75 brands, where I've brought their creative visions life. From independent artisans to major developers (who are literally building entire new towns!), I thrive on challenges and embrace a diverse range of projects.

Beyond the design studio, my personal passions include my Belgian Malinois, Halo, Traveling the world to broaden my creative horizons, with a special focus on extended stays in Europe whenever the opportunity arises, immersing myself in British Columbia's diverse nature, A huge futbol (soccer) fan (Portuguese National Team of course) and simple evenings at home with big coffee or glass of wine (vinho!) on my cozy patio.

As a designer, I don't just create visuals; I'm a storyteller. I hope to craft visual brand stories that resonate. I look for ways to bring something special to the visual identity — and think outside the box.

UNSTRUCTURED VS. STRUCTURED INTERVIEWING

Until recently, interviews were thought to be one of the least valid methods which organizations can use to select employees. However, research has shown that the validity of the selection interview can be greatly improved by using structured interviews.

STRATEGIES TO IMPROVE YOUR RECRUITMENT PROCESS

A GUIDE ON BEHAVIOURAL INTERVIEWING

Unstructured interviews:

are based on the job requirements. They are often unstructured and ask questions in areas that are important, but not necessarily directly relevant to the job. This can lead to a less consistent and decision-making process across candidates.

Research has shown that competency-based behavioural interviews can improve the quality of the selection process.

Structured interviews offer:

1. Consistency in the real job requirements.
2. Standardized questions – that is, based specifically on the tasks and responsibilities of the job.
3. A systematic approach to systematically gather information on candidates.
4. A consistent evaluation system against established job-related selection criteria.
5. A consistent approach applied to all candidates and fairly and equitably according to a single set of criteria.
6. A consistent approach to interviewing and selection skills.
7. Compliance with Equal Rights and Employment Equity legislation and standards.
8. A consistent approach to avoid characteristics from the first list, as candidates often find themselves tailoring the interview responses accordingly in what turns out to be an unstructured interview, which is often running into an ineffective interview. The characteristics of a structured interview are:
